TRIAL OF ALLEGED SLAYER OF EMPLOYER-LOVER ON

Witnesses Say Stretz Woman Directed Them to Victim's Body

New York, March 25.—(AP)—A tenant in Dr. Fritz Gebhardt's fashionable apartment house told a jury today how Vera Stretz directed him and the night manager to the body of her lover-employer, whom she is charged with shooting.

Albert Kopf, the tenant, testified as a state witness that he and the manager, named Tate, investigated a telephone report that someone in the building had been shot.

"While we were in the elevator," he said, "the signal indicated someone was ringing from the 19th floor."

"What did you see on the 19th floor?" asked Assistant District Attorney Miles O'Brien.

"We saw a woman sitting on a bench in the hallway," he said.

"Who was she?"

"Covered Her Face

"Miss Stretz," Kopf pointed out the defendant, who cupped her hands over her face.

"What did she say?"

"She asked Mr. Tate if he had found the man."

"What did he say?"

"He said he hadn't found any man. He didn't know what she was talking about. She told us to go up to the 21st floor, to room 2114."

"We went up and rapped a couple of times. There was no answer, so we went in."

"What did you see?"

"There was a body on the floor—a man's body."

"Did you notice anything in particular about the body?"

"The sheets seemed to be tangled around its feet."

On cross examination, Defense Attorney Samuel Leibowitz showed Kopf a picture of the apartment, taken by police.

"Do you see any part of a sheet tangled around his feet in that picture?"

"No."

Kopf told Leibowitz the door to the apartment had a spring lock. He was then excused, and a luncheon recess was taken.

Previously Miss Mary Hazelton, a tenant, told of being awakened by shots and of notifying the desk.

The day's first witness was Oscar Rohrig of Chatham, N. J., a second cousin of Gebhardt. The state called him to establish identity of the body.

Knew Victim Had Wife

Cross-examined by Leibowitz, Rohrig said he had met Miss Stretz twice.

"Did she come to your home in Chatham with Fritz Gebhardt?" asked Leibowitz.

"Yes."

"But you know that Gebhardt had a wife?"

"Yes."

Rohrig, a middle-aged man, also said he never had objected to his daughter going out with Miss Stretz.

Prison Musicians in "Solitary" for Discordant Notes

Joliet, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—The 37 members of the Joliet prison band who filled the prison air with discordant notes after being denied their customary post-broadcast snack will be released from solitary confinement tomorrow, Warden Joseph Ragen said today.

The punishment was imposed after last Sunday's broadcast of the band over a local station. Unrewarded for their efforts, the musicians protested—both vocally and with the aid of their instruments. The entire band was placed in solitary, on a bread and water diet.

Warden Ragen denied reports that the bandmen had gone on a hunger strike.

Bound to Federal Grand Jury Under Counterfeit Charge

Freeport, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—Elwood Senn, 32, of Sterling, Ill., and Paulridge Purvis, 36, of Clinton, Ia., were held in the county jail today pending federal grand jury action on charges of possession and passing counterfeit coins.

Sterling police arrested the pair following a raid on Senn's house, where they said, moulds for making counterfeit coins were found. Senn and Purvis were held in $2500 bond apiece.

Earth Slides May Stop Flow of Water Which Has Closed Up Big Mine in Johnson City for Weeks

Johnson City, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—Coal miners, poverty-stricken by the flooding of Old Ben mine No. 18, principal source of income for this community, were hopeful today that an earth fault which threatened 30 homes would cut off the underground water from the mine.

The surface break came over one of the abandoned workings from which water has been pouring into the Old Ben mine. A month ago a similar fault blocked one of the passages honeycombing the ground beneath the city and kept Franco mine No. 1 from being flooded.

The earth movement continued to a small degree last night and although no new breaks or damage was reported, the fissures widened at one point.

One residence appeared doomed today owing to the shifting of the foundation.

The disturbance almost completely flattened out a small hill on State highway 97,

"SPARKPLUG" OF TOWNSEND CLUB QUILTS MOVEMENT

Robert Clements Has Resigned as Probe by Congress Nears

Washington, March 25.—(AP)—The resignation of Robert E. Clements, 41-year-old "sparkplug" of the Townsend old age pension movement, led today to predictions that there will be a further crack-up in the organization's high command.

Members of a house committee, who summoned Clements to appear tomorrow as the first witness in a sweeping inquiry into the vast pension organization, said they expected "other resignations" soon.

Since Clements was widely credited with being an ace organizer largely responsible for the spread of the $200-a-month pension clubs, observers watched closely to see if his split with Dr. F. E. Townsend, co-founder of the plan, would spell disintegration for the movement.

Differed on "Policies."

Clements said he had differed from Townsend on "fundamental policies," including organization, methods of getting congress to enact the plan, and Townsend's political maneuvering. Townsend has been alternately voicing threats of a third party movement and expressing disfavor for such a movement. Clements expressed belief the Townsend plan should be kept non-political.

Both Clements and Townsend denied the split was due to friendly glances the physician has been casting toward the candidacy of Senator Borah of Idaho for the Republican presidential nomination.

Townsend issued a statement in Los Angeles saying he wanted decentralization of authority within the movement, while Clements "was more inclined toward keeping a tight rein on the organization, clubs and officers."

Women's Prison Satisfactory to Investigating Body

Dwight, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—Members of Governor Henry Horner's special citizen commission, appointed to investigate Illinois prisons, said today they were satisfied with conditions at the Oakdale reformatory for women prisoners here.

Bishop J. H. Schlarman of the Catholic diocese of Peoria, chairman, declared the investigating body believed the homelike quarters in the eight two-story brick cottages did not detract from the effective punishment of the inmates.

"There appears to be here a very intelligent understanding and sympathetic administration and an operation as economical as possible," Bishop Schlarman added.

The commission spent yesterday in touring the prison and questioning inmates and prison officials.

Flood Victims Riot When Furniture is Condemned by State

Vandergrift, Pa., March 25.—(AP)—National Guardsmen drove a crowd of more than 200 rioters from East Vandergrift today after they broke through guard lines and tried to prevent the citizens health committee from condemning household furnishings as unsanitary.

Dr. D. E. Snyder, Westmoreland county medical officer, had authorized S. J. Russell, chairman of the citizens flood committee here, to appoint the health committee.

He asked the committee to inspect property in the still-restricted East Vandergrift area, worst hit by last week's terrible flood and condemn furniture and possessions which might be disease laden.

Roosevelt Anxious to See Ship Remade for His Ocean Trips

Miami, Fla., March 25.—(AP)—Enthusiastic over his first day's catch, President Roosevelt looked forward today to another fishing trip near Mathewtown, Great Inagua island, in the Bahamas.

Most of all he was eager for his first look at the new presidential ship, the USS Potomac, waiting at Mathewtown.

The converted Coast Guard cutter will replace the decommissioned Mayflower and her successor, the Sequoia.

Aboard her are accommodations for the five members of the presidential fishing party, who put to sea Monday evening aboard the destroyer Monaghan and Dale which will continue on the trip as convey in the Potomac.

Mystery of Missing $500 Lost Since Thanksgiving Being Cleared Up Today

Best Friend of Ashton Farmer Admits Spending Money

The disappearance of about $500 in a purse at Thanksgiving time last year, when George Schinzer, residing south of Ashton on a farm, missed his purse, was being cleared up today almost four months later by Sheriff Ward Miller and Deputy Gilbert Finch, who have been active since Monday in checking different sources in which they were successful in not only identifying the finder of the money, but in ascertaining the manner in which it had been spent. Some other details concerning the case were being checked today, with State Attorney Edward Jones taking a hand in the investigation.

Schinzer, a widower, about 55 years of age, missed his purse which was reported to have contained two $100 bills, four $50 bills, one $10 bill, some check made payable to him and other papers. Abe Landis, aged 63, also a widower, who lives with Schinzer, both of whom have been friends for years, aided relatives and neighbors in conducting a thorough search for the missing purse.

Recently Schinzer had moved to another farm north of Ashton and in the meantime had consulted various fortune tellers and in almost each instance was told that his best friend had taken the money.

Made Delayed Report

Schinzer made no report of his loss to the sheriff until March 13, when his suspicions became aroused when Landis purchased an automobile and made preparation to go east for a visit with relatives.

On that date Schinzer related the details of his missing purse to Sheriff Miller and sought his assistance in furthering the investigation. The sheriff and his deputy began investigating Landis' actions in Rochelle, Rockford and Ashton and yesterday afternoon took him in custody for questioning, with the result that a signed confession was said to have been obtained. The same officers today were checking up certain parts of Landis' story while the case is being presented to the state's attorney for his consideration.

Found in Hog Lot

Landis is said to have told the officers that he found Schinzer's purse in the hog lot about Thanksgiving, but his estimate of the amount of money contained therein does not coincide with that of the owner. He made the find in the late afternoon and hid the purse in a manger in the barn at that time, he is said to have confessed. The following day, his statement continued, he removed the bills and placed them in a tin can which he concealed in another part of the barn, and his "plant" was not disturbed until February when Schinzer moved to another farm.

Landis stated he made arrangements to use the money in taking a trip east to visit relatives and decided to purchase an automobile. Recently he obtained a ride with an Ashton friend to Rockford, had the two $100 bills coaxed at a bank in that city and at the same time secured a bank draft for $100.

He returned to Ashton and purchased the car and was completing his plans for the eastern trip when the officers unexpectedly frustrated the program. In his statement to the officers, Landis told of having taken his flashlight on the night of Schinzer's loss of the purse and assisting several others in searching for it at the farm. He was reported to have offered to turn over the new automobile to his friend as part compensation for his heavy loss.

Funeral of Dr. A. W. Chandler to be Held Here Thursday

Private funeral services for the family of the late Dr. A. Willington Chandler, former Dixon physician and surgeon who died early Tuesday morning at his home in Rockford, will be held at the First Methodist church here at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to be followed by public services at 2 o'clock. Dr. Albertus Perry of Morrison will officiate and the casket bearers will be: Dr. McNichols of Dixon, Mr. White of West Brooklyn and Dr. Shaller, Bogue, Kipler and Elmer of Rochelle. The nurses of Dixon will meet at the church at 1:45 o'clock and attend the public services in a body.

Here Tomorrow

Republican candidate for governor, whose boyhood was spent in Dixon will address a mass meeting at the Dixon theater at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, following an organization of his campaign workers in Lee, Whiteside and Ogle counties, which delegations from Sterling, Amboy, Ashton, Oregon, Rochelle, Mt. Morris, Polo and Morrison are expected to attend. Before Mr. Brooks' speech several selections will be given by the "Harmony Boys," who recently broadcast from a Chicago radio station. The candidate will be introduced by Mayor William V. Slothower.

ALLEGED UXOR-CIDE IS FACING FOURTH HEARING

San Jose, Calif., March 25.—(AP)—David A. Lamson, once sentenced to death for the slaying of his wife, Allene, was confident of "vindication" today as prosecutors debated whether to try him a fourth time.

The former Stanford University press official heard a jury charged for the second time yesterday after failing to agree on a verdict in his case.

"Naturally, I'm disappointed," said Lamson, "but I'm just as certain as ever that I'll be vindicated finally."

District Attorney Fred Thomas said he would talk the case over with his staff before deciding whether to ask for another trial. Prosecution and defense attorneys agreed upon April 3 as the date for Lamson's next courtroom appearance.

Mrs. Lamson was found dead in the bathtub of her campus home, Memorial Day, 1933. The state contended Lamson struck her with an iron pipe, while the defense claimed she died of injuries received in a fall.

Lamson would be released if the state decided not to prosecute again. Convicted and sentenced to death at his first trial, Lamson was granted a new hearing by the state Supreme Court.

Industrial Leaders Met Here Yesterday

J. Frank Bennett presided as chairman yesterday over a district meeting of members of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, held in the circuit court room in the court house in Dixon. Representatives of various industries from Dixon and other northern Illinois cities were present. Matters relating to the interests of employers and employees in factories and in the district were discussed. The meeting was addressed by James L. Donnelly of Chicago, executive vice-president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association.

Director of Sewer Plant Work Here to Get Flying Lessons

Donald Starks, superintendent of the sewage disposal plant work here and representative of the Stark Building Co. went to Kansas Tuesday where a sewage disposal plant considerably larger than Dixon's is being installed. Excavating is under way here as the water level having been reached at fifteen feet. Excavation will continue about fifteen feet below the water line. Robert Griffin, former army aviator, employed on the project here, will give Stark flying instruction at the local airport this summer.

Covington, Ky., City of Sixty Thousand Inhabitants, Placed Under Quarantine by Officials

Covington, Ky., March 25.—(AP)—Dr. Theodore Sallee, Covington health officer, placed this city of 60,000 under a general quarantine today because of the discovery of a third case of spinal meningitis.

"This is no time for dilatory measures," he said.

The quarantine order closed all schools, theaters, churches and other public meeting places, including the Y. M. C. A. and Turners' hall.

Dr. Sallee said Mrs. Agatha Holmes, 65, was taken to a hospital late yesterday in a serious condition. Earlier Thomas Allen, 4, died of the disease, from which his brother, Martin, 9, also had died.

Dr. Guy Eckman of the board of health advised immediate and drastic steps to stamp out the disease which Dr. F. W. Caudill, Kentucky state health board epidemiologist, said at Louisville Monday has caused 45 or 50 deaths in Kentucky since December.

SOME ODDITIES IN TODAY'S A. P. WORLD NEWS REPORT

NEEDED BOOTJACK

Effingham, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—Robert Brumleve of Teutopolis, is nursing a broken leg today received when he fell off a chair when his hand slipped while pulling off his boots.

TEACHER PLEASED

Livingston, Tenn., March 25.—(AP)—Harless Reeder has been graduated from the eighth grade, to the great delight of his teacher, who is also his wife. Harless, a strapping youth of 16, and his teacher, Miss Pauline Roberts, 30, were married two weeks before the end of the term.

CATCH IN IT

Oklahoma City, March 25.—H. Doty, editor of the Oklahoma City University undergraduate paper, yearned to count his readers. He announced in an editorial that prizes awaited the first few who would come to his office. Some 90 who rushed in were referred to the last paragraph, in which the offer was withdrawn.

PROUD OF TERRIER

Minden, Neb., March 25.—(AP)—Magner Nielsen, Minden farmer, is proud of his smart terrier. Nielsen lost a pocketbook containing $17 and some small change. A little later his dog came in from the pasture with a pocketbook containing $17 and some small change. Nielsen is proud of the dog even though the pocketbook wasn't the one he lost.

JUST ONE-WAY BIRD

Portland, Ore., March 25.—(AP)—Urban Kubat, 19, has solved the family transportation problem with a street car pass and a homing pigeon.

Kubat rides to work on the pass, taking his pigeon along. Then he fastens the pass under the bird's wing and it flies home to youth's father. Father Kubat goes to work like his son and the pigeon brings the pass back to Mrs. Kubat who uses it to take lunches to her husband and son.

Urban and his father have to pay regular fares enroute home because the pigeon is a one-way bird.

Contracts are Let for Highway Jobs in this Vicinity

Springfield, Ill., March 25.—(AP)—The state division of highways today awarded contracts for 20 road improvement projects in 15 counties.

The proposed work, costing $557,838, included 1.8 miles of pavement, 17.1 miles of grading, 3.8 miles of traffic bound surface course and several viaducts, subways and bridges.

The successful bidders included: Rt. 70, Ogle, substructure for viaduct over Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul & Pacific railroad east of Davis Junction, A. P. Munson, Marion, Iowa, $15,017; superstructure for viaduct, Milwaukee Bridge Co., Milwaukee, Wis., $19,993.

Sect. 115B, Ogle and Whiteside three bridges and culvert south-west of Polo, Fred Kaney, Forreston, $24,977.

The new rise, which rivermen predicted would not come within many feet of last week's mark in Pittsburgh, threatened to inundate basements in the lower part of the Golden Triangle, heart of Pittsburgh's business area, which was hard hit by the last flood.

Lowland residents at Wheeling, W. Va., were warned to prepare for new highwaters from the Ohio, into which the Monongahela empties.

Racing toward Pittsburgh from the north were new high waters from the Allegheny river, but weather bureau officials predicted the Monongahela will be falling by the time the Allegheny's crest arrives. This would diminish the flood danger.

The high waters impeded relief work in some areas but reconstruction plans went ahead at full speed.

KENTUCKY INVADED

Louisville, Ky., March 25.—(AP)—The turbulent Ohio river carried on its invasion of Kentucky today and, with a 33-foot crest predicted in the next 24 hours—five feet above flood stage—Louisville families living along its banks continued to evacuate their homes. Fifty families were routed yesterday.

But weather bureau officials termed it "not much of a flood." They said the peak would fall 14 feet short of Louisville's big flood of 1884. The encroaching waters have closed several highways to traffic, inundated two golf courses, summer camps, and scores of homes here.

Apprehension was felt at Henderson, further to the west, where a peak of 10 feet above flood stage is forecast. Already thousands of acres of bottom land is under water in that region.

At Owensboro, where a dust storm struck yesterday, the river reached flood stage of 41 feet today and lowlands near Stanley and Maccos, Ky., were inundated.

ASK AND GET

By Joseph Fort Newton

"WHEN we are young," a lovely reader writes,

"ask for a clear day.

Or we may ask for a pretty dress, as I did once upon a time.

"The dress came, too—or rather the cloth out of which to make it, exactly the right color. What a joy

it was, like a dream come true.

Then, alas, mother used the cloth to make something else! It is none of your business how long ago it happened, but it hurts to this day.

"Tom Sawyer, you remember—or was it Huck Finn?—prayed for a fishing pole, a line, hook, and sinker. He got the pole and line, but not the sinker. Anyway, it was proof to him that there is something in it.

"But, as we grow older, I find myself praying not for things, but for qualities—for courage, chiefly for patience to go on bravely, for a sympathetic understanding, and the grace of a quiet mind.

"Do you think this a natural and orderly development? Perhaps, as we come to have more within us, we think and care less for things outside of us. At any rate, it is so in my experience—so far."

Exactly, and my reader will find it more so as she goes on along the road, as witness these wise and deep words in the new life of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, which some of us are reading:

"As one grows old, I find that meditation takes the place of more definite prayer; and that one thinks upon people and problems and work, as in the presence of God." How beautiful and true those words are.

One does not ask for this, that,

or the other thing—it is just the habit of the heart and mind to think of ourselves, of those we love, of everything, in the presence, under the eyes, of God.

What a difference it makes in the point of view of our thinking, as well as in the attitude of our hearts. It gives perspective, proportion, purpose, and a clearer, kinder light upon the path.

Just a turn of thought, a little habit of the heart, yet what a difference it makes in interpreting the mystery of life!

Girl Scout Activities of Interest

Troop I

On Tuesday, March 17, the girls of Troop I celebrated St. Patrick's

Day by singing Irish songs, playing games and enjoying ice cream and cookies. The party was planned in Court of Honor and was a surprise to the rest of the troop.

On Tuesday, March 24, fourteen of the girls passed their First Aid for second class with Mrs. Stewart

Nettz as examiner. The girls who are working on First Class are practicing for speed in signalling with flags.

Ten members of the troop are attending the class for the First Aid and Home Nurse badges given each

Saturday morning at the hospital.

Troop II

Troop II met on Monday, March

23, at the E. C. Smith school. The girls enjoyed laying and following a trail in the outdoors, after which they assembled in the scout room for "song fest." Mrs. Hardy, Scout

Director, was a visitor.

Troop VII

On Thursday afternoon, March 19

the members of Troop VII assembled in the scout room at Smith school for an investiture ceremony.

At this time seven Tenderfoot Pins were presented by Mrs. Hardy, local

Director of Scouting. The happy recipients of these awards were:

Rosabelle Collins, Georgia Collins,

Lucille Collins, Helen Heron, Jacue-

line McReynolds, Mary Sue Stewart and Ruth Brown. Nine guests were present to witness the impressive ceremony. Delicious refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Brownie Pack III

Brownie Pack III held its

"International Revel" on Tuesday afternoon, March 24 at South Central school. The Brownies have been preparing for this these past four weeks.

Scout First Aid and Home Nurse

The classes in First Aid and Home Nursing, conducted at the K.

S. B. Hospital by Miss Payne, are holding the interest of eighteen Girl

Scouts. The group met on Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the hospital. Class will be held this week at the same hour.

Augustana Choir to

Sing Here April 19

Arrangements have been completed to have the nationally known choir of Augustana College,

Rock Island, Ill., appear locally in a concert which will be presented

Sunday evening, April 19, in St.

Paul's Lutheran church, it was announced today.

The Augustana choir, through years of diligent study and brilliant performance under the leadership of its celebrated director, Henry

Veld, has earned the distinction of being one of the leading choral organizations of the country. With the honor of being the only choir ever to have been chosen in the same year to represent the colleges and universities of America at both the national convention of the Music Teachers National Association and the Music Educators National Conference, the Augustana choir this year is making a 17-day tour of over 3000 miles, during which it is presenting concerts in the principal music centers of the East. The choir is appearing tonight, at the Academy of Music in Philadelphia, and tomorrow afternoon, March 26, it will present a program from Radio City, New York, over the blue network of the National Broadcasting Company.

The broadcast will be given from 1:30 to 2:00 P. M. central standard time. The Chicago outlet will probably be WMAQ.

Being composed of seventy-two voices, the choir is really a component of two choral groups, the Wennerberg male chorus and the Jenny Lind women's chorus. In the course of the program each of these groups appears separately presenting several numbers, and then both groups are combined into a great a cappella choir that presents a number of complicated but inspiring compositions of the great masters.

The choir is a pioneer in this field of concert program, and the plan has been genuinely approved by outstanding music critics, audiences and other singing groups.

Wm. K. Ford to

Address Dixon Woman's Club Saturday

William K. Ford, M. D. dermatologist of Rockford will be the speaker on the program of the

Dixon Woman's Club Saturday afternoon March 28th at 2:30 o'clock at the Christian church. Dr. Ford will speak on "Cosmetics and the Care of the Skin."

NO LEAGUE FOR UNITED STATES
Great Britain's suggestion that a new and reformed league of nations be considered at a meeting in which the United States and Japan would have observers is a confession of the final failure of collective security and the complete admission of the futility of the "present" league.

While it might be advisable for the United States to have observers at such a conference, the United States will do well to refuse to participate actively in formation of any new body, and we should not permit ourselves to be involved as a member nation.

The league of nations was organized in a state of high emotion and based upon the supposition that nations honor their pledges. The fact is that nations honor their pledges only when it is profitable for them to do so. That fact, coupled with the biological process which has grouped men into races and nations differing in culture, language and color, makes impossible any system of collective security which would be accepted today.

Let us examine a concrete example of how the league of nations, which was as strong as could be agreed to generally, failed to operate. In 1920 Poland and Lithuania were having a quarrel over possession of Vilna, which Lithuania claimed belonged to it under the peace treaty. Poland at first appealed to the league. The league ordered the opposing armed forces to withdraw while the case was adjudicated. Then something happened. No one ever may know exactly what it was, but some under-cover occurrence transpired that enraged the Poles. They marched into Vilna and defied the league of nations to oust them. The league did not eject them, and in that period the league of nations died. Since that time it has been a rotting corpse.

Why did the league permit the Poles to retain Vilna by unilateral action? Why was Poland permitted, under "collective security," to act as judge, jury and executioner in the case?

The reason was that every major power in the league recognized that if Poland were denied possession of Vilna, that country would withdraw from the league. Poland's strategic position made its membership essential to fulfill what the league was supposed to do. Furthermore Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and other countries recognized that if they jointly prevented Poland's seizure of Vilna, then the league in later years might prevent their own seizure of territory. If these nations, by positive action in the Vilna matter, had kept Poland from judging its own case according to its own conception of right, then they, too, might be prevented from judging their own cases in the future. In other words, they would have forfeited their right to independent action. Italy never could have penalized Greece in the Corfu affair nor could she have invaded Ethiopia. Japan never could have seized Manchuria and northern China.

The league covenant called for progressive disarmament, and no one abroad, even in 1920, believed that the nations would disarm, progressively or otherwise. Germany withdrew from the league over this knotty problem. It was better to have Germany withdraw under the circumstances.

Everybody recognized that an unarmed Germany was no threat to an armed France. But if France had disarmed, then Germany, by virtue of larger population and larger birthrate, would have been a dangerous threat to France both economically and in the field. Russia at that time was not a member of the league, and everyone knew that an unarmed Germany and an unarmed France jointly could not hold back the Red tide, which was armed. So it was better to allow Germany to withdraw and arm herself.

Explicitly, the league powers wished to preserve the status quo in Europe. It has been a fundamental item in the foreign policy of France that no centralized and powerful nation should be permitted to arise in central Europe. This ambition has dovetailed with British policy, and it did not interfere with Japan's ambitions in Asia. It has favored Italy, and since Russia joined the league, it has favored the communists.

Efforts of statesmen to pretend that they were keeping faith with the league covenant have amounted to indecent antics. They have lost confidence in each other and have forfeited the respect of their own people. If the stomachs of the British statesmen have been upset, and if all are going to conduct the obsequies of the league by re-examination of the situation, then more honor to them, even if they can not bring themselves to admit what they are doing.

There is one kind of league of nations that might succeed if a majority of the nations could be induced to join. It would have, first, a powerful army and navy that would promptly set about to disarm every nation by force. It would have some sort of court that would sit in judgment over all international disputes. It would have an international president and an international legislature. It might be called a United States of the World. Obviously such a league is impossible of achievement, even though it can be conceived. If nations were inclined to organize and join such a league it would not be called for in the first place. We do not want to join even that kind of a league.

We are getting to the end of a delusion. The league of nations was organized to prevent war. That was its sole purpose. It was made as strong as possible. Even then it was too strong for an individualistic nation like the United States. It has lived up to its weaknesses as pointed out in the United States senate during the campaign for its adoption. It has failed to do what its proponents said it would do.

In our international relations we are back to 1914. The world still consists of a polygot assembly of Americans, British, French, Germans, Japanese, Chinese—white, yellow and black, the average nation being determined to keep what it has and get what it can. There are still Napoleons and Kaisers under different names in Europe and in Asia.

As always, the nation that preserves its own interests is the one that trusts in God and keeps its powder dry.

"Let's flop down 'neath some tree. It will be comfortable, no doubt." Then Doty said, "I think that I will look around a bit and try to find some sort of berries. I'm as hungry as can be." "The rest of you can wait right here. I'll hurry right back, never fear." "If you have any luck," said Doty, "bring some back to me." "Some water just fell in my face. We sure picked out a funny place. If I am sprinkled any more, I am not going to stay." "Why, where's the water coming from?" said Doty. "I, too, just felt

MOODS.
We blame so much on our moods. What is a mood anyway? If we feel like romancing we sing, "I'm in the Mood for Love," or if we feel way down at the mouth, we say, "I'm in a Blue and Pensive Mood."

If someone suggests going out and ringing doorbells or playing marbles, we merely say, "I'm not in the mood." Or if someone is rather temperamental, we immediately type him, "moody." I don't suppose there is anyone who isn't. Some may conceal their innermost feelings to a little better advantage than others, however, the old thing is still there.

It always seems as though the moodiest people are those who have nothing to think of but themselves. They feel very much hurt if something isn't bothering them, either mentally or physically.
Oh well, it takes all kinds of people to constitute a universe and after all, we would feel lost without that simple little word, mood.

Mellon Observed His Eighty-First Birthday; Is Spry

Pittsburgh, March 25 —(AP)—Andrew William Mellon, one of the world's wealthiest men and three times secretary of the treasury, celebrated his 81st birthday anniversary Tuesday, apparently as busy as he was the day he first went into business for himself 64 years ago.

His step is firm and his health apparently excellent. His friends say they believe only a reticence to make public statements prevents his optimistic viewpoint from being voiced.

FRANCE, GREAT BRITAIN AND U. S. SIGN TREATY

Tri-Power Naval Pact Effected in London This Morning

(Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press)
London, March 25—The United States, Great Britain, and France signed a new international naval treaty today.

The pact removes restrictions on the size of navies, but the United States and Great Britain, possessors of the world's mightiest fleets, agreed separately to maintain their navies at the same level.

This Anglo-American agreement was expressed in an exchange of letters between Norman H. Davies, head of the American delegation, and Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary.

Washington, March 25—(AP)—Here are the principal provisions of the new naval treaty, signed today by the United States, Great Britain and France at London, the text of which was made public by the state department:

Duration: From January 1, 1937, or as soon thereafter as ratification can be completed, to December 31, 1942.

Capital ships limited to present maximum of 35,000 tons standard displacement. Their guns will be restricted to 14 inch calibre provided other parties to the Washington naval treaty (Japan and Italy) agree to conform; otherwise maximum will be 16 inches.

Aircraft carriers not to exceed 23,000 tons, a reduction from the present treaty maximum of 27,500 tons; guns not to exceed 6.1 inch.

Six-Year "Holiday"
Cruisers restricted to 8,000 tons and a six-year "holiday" declared on construction of present maximum 10,000 ton cruisers; guns limited to 6.1 inch.

Submarines limited to present 2,000 tons; guns to 5.1 inch.

No preparations shall be made in merchant ships in peace time for the installation of war armaments other than the necessary stiffening of decks to mount guns not exceeding 6.1 inch.

Signatories will exchange each year detailed information concerning naval programs, including advance notice of four months of the laying of new keels.

"Escape," or safeguarding, clauses include the right of signatories to suspend any treaty obligations if they become involved in war, if their national security requires or if a non-signatory builds vessels beyond treaty limitations to an extent that signatories for their security.

Can Sell Warships
No contracting party is permitted by gift sale or any mode of transfer, to dispose of any surface vessels of war or submarines in such a manner that they may become part of a foreign navy. This provision does not apply to auxiliary craft.

Guarding Against Flood Epidemics

In the event that a signatory becomes engaged in war and suspends certain provisions, the treaty provides that upon the cessation of hostilities the signatories shall consult to fix a date when the agreement again becomes fully operative.

If the construction or modernization of vessels for a power not a party to the treaty is undertaken by a signatory, the latter must give information "as soon as possible" to the other signers.

DIXON SCOUTS HAVE BOOTHS; OREGON SHOW

Citizens Urged To Support Sale of Tickets Today

Of the thirty exhibits that will be on display at the Lee and Ogle County Boy Scout Merit Badge exposition, seven exhibits will be entered by six Dixon troops.

Troop 89, Dixon State Hospital, will enter a textiles and basketry booth, while Troop 60, Baptist church, will have a tracking and knife and acts exhibit Troop 67, Grace Evangelical church, plans on entering a clever woodworking and metalcraft booth, while Troop 72, Methodist church, will have a novel photography exhibit. Troop 76, St. Paul's Lutheran church, has an Indian lore exhibit for spectators to inspect and Troop 89, Christian church has spent considerable time and energy preparing an aviation booth.

Troops have been given about three weeks to sell tickets for the exposition. Each troop has been assigned a quota of five tickets for each registered Scout and to the troops selling their quota of tickets on this basis will receive a special ribbon award. Any troop selling 100 or more tickets will receive the full selling price of all tickets sold, and troops selling less than 100 tickets will receive a 50 per cent commission.

To promote the sale of tickets troops are enlisting the aid of their parents, staging inter-patrol ticket selling contests and other stunts. Parents and citizens accustomed to taking their weekly joy rides these fine spring days are urged to journey to Oregon and see the fine work their boys are doing in Scouting.

At the Court of Honor, Saturday night, April 4, the vice-president cup in each county will be re-warded to the troop having the highest score. First Class, Star, Life, Eagle, Palm and merit badges will be presented at the Court of Honor on a basis of points.

Awards for exhibits will be presented each booth, a blue streamer to the winner attaining 85 to 100 points, a red ribbon to the second place holder with 60 to 84 points, and a white streamer for third place attainment of near 60 points. Every booth may earn a streamer award. A grand award streamer will be given the troop in each county which make the best record during the exposition based on the following items:

- (1) Cooperation with the exposition committee.
- (2) Unique features of exhibit.
- (3) Score on exhibits.

DAILY HEALTH

RADIO AND MEDICINE

Some 10 years ago the American scientist Schereschewsky published a brief but epoch-making report on the effects of radio waves on animals and bacteria. Since then a monumental amount of work has been done in this field. Many and bizarre claims have been made for this method of treatment. But even with all exaggerations cut, the use of radio waves in medicine is promising.

The energy utilized in short-wave diathermy is identical with that by means of which the wireless transmission of sound is accomplished. But in the circuit employed in short wave diathermy, the body takes the place of the antenna, and the energy, instead of being radiated, is absorbed in the patient's body.

There is one other essential difference—the antenna is connected directly to the circuit, whereas the body is placed between, but not in contact with, the electric plates of the short-wave therapy machine.

For radio bugs the circuit may be described as follows:

The part to be treated is brought into the condenser field, "thereby becoming part of the dielectric and also part of the tuned resonance circuit." It has been found that the wave length utilized in short-wave therapy bears some as yet not clearly understood relationship to the different substances contained in the part subjected to treatment. In other words, the body contains a variety of tissues, such as fat, muscle, blood and bone, and given wave lengths appear to have a selective action upon certain of these tissues. Should all of these be exposed, as perforce they must be, to a given wave length, on tissue may be heated more than the rest. Thus, large quantities of heat can be introduced into the body without unduly heating the skin and the superficial fat.

Short-wave diathermy is being used effectively in the treatment of a variety of conditions, including chronic inflammation in bones, joints and tendons, sinusitis and certain internal organs, boils and carbuncles.

Embassy Concerned Over Missionaries Isolated In China

Nanking, March 24—(AP)—The United States embassy expressed grave concern today over the safety of the American missionaries, the Rev. and Mrs. Claude Thomas and their two children, after reports were received that Communists captured Hwangtung.

The missionaries, attached to the China inland mission at Hwoksien, 75 miles south of Taiyuan, Shansi province, were believed to be in that vicinity.

Americans were evacuating mission stations within 50 miles of Taiyuan.

Retail Advertising In Newspapers Goes Up Over 2 Per Cent

Chicago, March 24—(AP)—Retail advertising in newspapers of 66 major cities increased 24 per cent during the seven day period ended March 14 as compared with the same period a year ago the publication, Advertising Age, reported today.

During that week, the publication stated 17,185,843 lines of advertising were inserted, compared with a total of 16,782,473 lines a year ago.

NEW DEAL FARM PROGRAM WORSE THAN THIEVERY

—HENRY FORD

Withdrawal of Fertile Land From Production Called Wrong

Ways, Ga., March 25—(AP)—Henry Ford, proponent of correlation of industry and agriculture, describes the withdrawal of fertile land from crop production as "worse than thievery."

"It's wrong," he said in an exclusive interview. "It's against nature."

Financiers, he charged, are interested in crop curtailment to keep prices up so they can make more money.

The motor magnate expressed his views while arranging for the opening of a project near his plantation here to train young residents of this rural area, both whites and Negroes, in the manual arts. The first log was sawed Tuesday.

Work shops, including a saw mill, an electrical plant, a machine shop, foundry, chemistry laboratory, wood shop, and home economics department are to be erected.

Will Be Self-Supporting
Saleable articles, including parts for automobiles, will be turned out by the project and the unit will be self supporting, Ford said.

Using up leisure time in agricultural pursuits, in addition to providing economic security, likewise services to keep people out of trouble, lessens chances of war, Ford said.

"The only way to end war is to make people fear it," he added, declaring that war is controlled in this country by about 25 or 30 men. These men, he said, are the real "public enemies."

He criticized some new taxes and curtailment of agricultural production as the work of what he termed the "underneath government," composed of persons interested in their own profits.

"People are fatheads to let them get away with it," Ford said.

MUST SAVE AMERICA

Raleigh, N. C., March 25—(AP)—Senator Frederick Steiwer (R-Ore.) asserted the real issue of the 1936 political campaign was "to save America from the New Deal" as he lashed out at the Democratic national administration in the keynote address of the North Carolina Republican convention here.

He sharply criticized what he termed the "failure" of the Democrats to provide "an adequate, permanent, constitutional farm program," and said "in spite of extravagant spending we have lost ground" in the problem of unemployment.

Britain's Eden Goes 'Top Hat'

During the European crisis brought on by Hitler's resumption of the "Watch on the Rhine," Anthony Eden, who played an important role in steering the Continent away from war, seems from this picture to have gone "high hat" literally. Anyway, the navy British foreign minister is shown leaving, not a ball, but a conference of the Locarno powers on Germany's rearmament of the Rhineland.

Steiwer denied Republican responsibility for the depression and asserted his party's administration was rendered "utterly impotent" in 1930 by a "coalition in the Senate and a heavy Democratic majority in the House."

He assailed President Roosevelt for "building up at the national capital the greatest bureaucracy the world has ever known" and said "centralization of power x x x breeds a system which destroys the power of the people and is precisely the opposite of popular government."

MAY MAKE OWN PLANES.

Melbourne, Australia (AP)—A complete aircraft manufacturing industry may be established here, R. A. Parkhill, commonwealth defense minister has indicated, to supply orders for the air force. British factories, it is said, have been unable recently to cope with the Australian demand.

Chaos and Epidemic Threat in Deluge Wake

A scene of chaos, over which hung fear of epidemics, was this one on Wheeling Island, W. Va., largest river island in the country, after flood waters of the Ohio river had receded, leaving nearly a score of dead. Torrents had piled debris in huge jumbles in this street and a monumental task faced the cleanup squad shown as it started into action. In subsiding, the river left great areas of mud and pools of stagnant water, fertile breeding places of disease.

The occasion was the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Marcey Spratt who for years lived in this community north of town and has many relatives and friends who are wishing her many more happy birthday anniversaries.

The Methodist Aid society met Thursday afternoon in the church parlors. Mrs. Winn Wasson, Mrs. Guy Wasson and Miss Bertha Zoelent entertained. After the usual business meeting, Miss Georgia Patterman gave her reading that she gave at the sub-district contest in Mt. Morris. Mrs. W. L. Moore and Mrs. F. J. Blocher rendered a violin duet with Miss Flora Wicker accompanying at the piano. It is the plan of the president, Mrs. Roy Shoemaker to have a short program at each meeting of the aid society.

The Ashton high school orchestra was greeted Sunday night by a large audience in the local Presbyterian church. The sacred concert they rendered is spoken of very highly, being very high class.

OBITUARY
Bela Ray Halderman was born in Kansas City, Kan., May 2, 1890 and departed this life March 18, 1936 at the Katherine Shaw Bethea hospital in Dixon, after having been a patient there since December 10. When admitted to the hospital he underwent an operation for ulcers of the stomach, but his condition was much more serious than at first thought. He made a brave fight for life, and was always hopeful of returning to his office where he had spent many happy years.

Bela as he was known to everyone, when but a small lad, came with his mother, Mrs. Jennie Halderman to this place where they have made their home ever since. He early became interested in printing and when but ten years of age learned to set type by the hand method when the late George W. Gaver was the publisher of the Reporter. Being a good faithful worker, when the changes in ownership of the paper was made, Bela remained in the employ of the new publishers. During the time he was learning the printer's trade he attended the Franklin Grove public school and graduated with the class of 1907.

Twenty-seven years ago he became the editor and publisher of the Franklin Reporter, having purchased the plant from the late S. D. Remley. Bela was devoted to his work and became a splendid writer of poetry which has been widely published. Recently he compiled a book of poems which he named "Just Poems" which was published and found ready sale. He took an active part in politics and was for many years a member of the Lee County Republican committee.

Mr. Halderman was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church and at the time of his death was secretary of the Sunday school. For over twenty years he had a perfect attendance record, not having been absent from his duties for a single Sunday. Fraternally he was affiliated with the Modern Woodmen and the Masonic lodge.

Bela was of a cheerful happy disposition, loved to visit with his friends, and when possible was ready to do a favor to those deserving. His unselfish devotion to his mother, and his home will linger as a fragrant memory, in the minds of his friends.

Surviving him is his aged and feeble mother, Mrs. Jennie Halderman, who had faithfully visited him every day at the hospital during his long illness. There are a number of other relatives, one aunt Mrs. Gazette Sunday, several cousins and a large circle of friends who most sincerely regret his early passing from life.

The body lay in state at his late home between the hours of 2 and 4 o'clock and were viewed by a large circle of friends, not only in this town but from the surrounding towns also.

Funeral services were held from the late home Saturday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. L. E. Winter of the Methodist church, Rev. O. D. Buck of the Church of the Brethren and Rev. C. P. Blekking of the Presbyterian church. Interment was made in the Franklin cemetery. The casket bearers were Dallas Stultz, Walter Spratt, Charles Schmucker, Roy Wendell, Frank Ross and Wm. Herbst. The floral tributes were beautiful and gave evidence of how highly Bela was esteemed. The stores of the village were closed during the hour of the funeral.

Sunset and evening star
And one clear call for me;
And may there be no moaning of the bar

When I put out to sea.

But such a tide as moving seems asleep,
Too full for sound or foam:
When that which drew from out the boundless deep Turns again home.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark;
And may there be no sadness of farewell
When I embark.

For though, from out our bourne of time and place
The flood may bear me far,
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crossed the bar.

Were Married

George Hawbecker and Mrs. Minnie Brown, both of this place were united in marriage Thursday evening at the Presbyterian manse with the pastor, Rev. C. P. Blekking officiating at the quiet ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Trotter attended the couple. Both the bride and groom are well known here. The groom has been in the employ of the L. A. Trotter grocery store for several years. The bride has resided here for several years, has always been interested in everything that is for the betterment of the community. They will reside in the beautiful home of the bride, where the best wishes of a large circle of friends will be with them.

Brethren Notes
The Brethren church will hold Pre-Easter services beginning Palm Sunday, April 5, continuing until Easter Sunday evening. On Friday evening, April 10 the Passion Play will be shown in moving pictures. People spend hundreds of dollars traveling to Oberammergau to see the Passion play. Here is your opportunity to see it close at home. Every scene was taken in the Holy Land and Egypt. In seeing the Passion Play you will realize as never before the history of our Lord's Passion, the cruelty, the terrible suffering, the profound agony. Not to see it is to miss the opportunity of a life time. On Easter Sunday evening a pageant will be presented "Victory Over Death."

On next Sunday evening, March 20, the choir will go to Mt. Morris Church of the Brethren and present the following program:

WPA Musicians Are Forbidden Playing At Political Rally

Chicago—Ralph Burke, deputy Illinois WPA administrator, ruled that WPA musicians and actors may not provide entertainment at political rallies. The ruling came after Miss Kate F. O'Connor, chairman of a Winnebago county organization backing Gov. Henry Horner for renomination, objected to the scheduled appearance of a WPA band at a meeting sponsored by backers of Dr. Herman N. Bundenzen, Chicago, also a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination.

The ruling became effective late yesterday and union musicians played at last night's rally.

REJECT DICTATION!

• HENRY HORNER did away with the state tax on YOUR real estate, amounting to 35 Million Dollars!

• He restored the State's credit and BALANCED THE BUDGET. Wiped out 10 million dollar tax anticipation debt.

• He REDUCED state government costs 22 Per Cent, a 30 MILLION DOLLAR SAVING over the previous three years.

• He urged adoption and passage of Old Age Pension Act, providing for aged people of Illinois.

• He urged and secured reduction in Illinois Auto mobile License fees.

• He SAVED Illinois schools through full payment for the first time in years of the State School Distributive Fund.

• He SAVED CONSUMERS 11 MILLION DOLLARS by reducing utility rates for electricity gas, telephone, water and heat.

• He SAVED 1000 FARMS for owners through the Farm Debt Adjustment Committee.

• He had constructed, in addition to many other roads, 1,400 miles of farm-to-market roads, the first built in Illinois by the state.

But because he opposed legalized GAMBLING in Chicago and dog racing in East St. Louis; because he fought for HONEST ELECTIONS in Chicago, the Chicago political bosses, decided HENRY HORNER must be beaten. Reject this DICTATION—

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

GREEK PASSAGE

MORE than 2000 years ago, ancient Greeks used to drag their vessels along narrow slips across the isthmus that connects the mainland with the Peloponnesus peninsula. It was a difficult, back-breaking task for the hundreds of bound slaves.

Julius Caesar thought of digging a canal across this isthmus of Corinth, to make the passage easier, and the Emperor Nero, in 67 A. D., actually began operations. But the digging hardly was begun when Rome's internal troubles caused abandonment of the project.

It was not until 1821 that a French company finally took up the job. In the end, a Greek company completed it in 1823. Costing $12,000,000, the four-mile canal cuts 200 miles off the trip from the Adriatic to the Aegean seas, yet it cannot be used by the large steamers. It is only 70 feet broad and 26 feet deep, and strong currents render passage dangerous.

The stamp shown here, issued in 1927, shows a ship passing sandstone cliffs that reach to a height of 170 feet.

Chevrolet's
high-compression valve-in-head engine gives economy without equal!

FOR ECONOMICAL TRANSPORTATION

Every test proves it's more economical . . . Every Chevrolet owner knows it's more economical . . . And every person will readily understand these simple A-B-C reasons why it is more economical

The Chevrolet engine is the most economical automobile engine produced today, because (1) it is a six-cylinder engine, and (2) it is a valve-in-head six-cylinder engine. . . Its six cylinders use less gas and oil—in fact, use the least gas and oil—because six cylinders are the most economical combination used in modern automobiles. . . Its valve-in-head design cuts gasoline consumption still lower because there is less loss of heat through the walls of the combustion chamber in valve-in-head engines, and the advanced construction of the Chevrolet engine gives maximum heat (or power) saving. . . Most important of all, Chevrolet's more efficient cooling system, pressure stream oiling and the greater accessibility of all working parts result in more dependable operation, over a longer period of time, with the lowest maintenance costs.

Dixon Cage Team Feted At Elks Club With 200 Present at Big Dinner

Speakers Recalled Many Phases of Great Season

About 200 citizens and friends of the great Dixon high school basketball team attended a banquet given by the Elks' in honor of the squad at the Elks' club Tuesday night.

A program of short after-dinner speeches followed the dinner. Opening the speaking program one verse of "America" was sung, led by Richard Durkes, after which Toastmaster Harry C. Warner introduced Mayor William V. Slot-hower who pointed out that victory was not so indicative of the team's ability as the fact these boys were able to maintain high scholastic achievement and get on the team besides. He said city officials are seldom troubled by the misdeeds of high school athletes who have learned the qualities of good citizenship in athletics.

Judge Harry Edwards, next on the program, recalled that he was one of the founders of Dixon high school's athletic association, and Superintendent A. H. Lancaster complimented the coaching staff and the whole-hearted support of the community of the team. He thanked the Elks' for their hospitality in sponsoring the banquet.

Frazer Talks Co-operation
Principal B. J. Frazer sounded the note of co-operation which was so thoroughly exemplified by the team in all its games. He said athletics in high school are meant to produce something tangible to character and not to provide a Roman holiday for the public.

John N. Weiss, professor of agriculture, following Mr. Frazer on the program, emphasized that "to do one's best is all that one can do and all that any one can ask of an individual."

Athletic Director A. C. Bowers recalled the grade school basketball achievements of the team when the identical quint won 13 out of 14 games with grade school rivals. Coach C. B. Lindell, head football coach and assistant basketball mentor, remarked of the high scholastic grades made by both football and basketball boys and praised the work of the substitutes whose part in the several victories is often overlooked.

Sharpe Praises Boys
Coach L. E. Sharpe declared the boys loved the game, desired to excel, possessed a mastery of fundamentals and enormous energy, four essential qualifications for a victorious season. They were also of the competitive spirit and possessed a great offensive power which won for them an average of 33 points a game or about 23 per cent of the 1154 shots they took at the basket during the campaign.

Coach Sharpe then introduced his Sharpshooters. They were Robert Evans, Arthur Klein, Richard Durkes, Robert Krug, Louis Schumm, Robert Coakley, Callahan, Lloyd Miller, Donald Miller, Gerald Ankeny, Joy Ellis and Ken Barnhart and McGinnis, managers.

Arthur Klein, called upon to speak for the team, said that the players considered good teamwork, excellent coaching and fine spirit, the principal reasons for Dixon's successful campaign. In speaking of the individual talents of the boys he stated that Dick Durkes was a better player than he was given credit for, an excellent guard and a good shot. Of Bob Krug he told instances in which Krug's coolness saved the game, and the remarkable shooting ability of Mary Rebeck and Bob Evans.

Joe E. Miller, representing the Boynton-Richards Co. then presented the team with year belts upon which was inscribed the club humerals of the individual players.

North And South Open Meet Begins Spring Golfing

Pinehurst, N. C., March 25.—(AP)—Faced by a trio of parasmashers—Henry Picard, of Hershey, Pa., Herman Barron of White Plains, N. Y., and Jimmy Thompson of Beverly Hills, Calif., golfers making the spring circuit started today on the second 18 holes of the $4,000 North and South open championship.

The 60 leaders at the end of today's round will enter the 36-hole final round tomorrow.

The three leaders clipped a stroke from regulation figures and were tied at 71 for the initial round. Wiffy Cox, of Bethesda, Md., equaled par with a 72.

Seven were tied at 73. These were Ray Mangrum, Pittsburgh; Vic Ghezzi, Deal, N. J.; Tommy Armour, Chicago; Walter Hagen, Detroit; Jack Mackie, Jr., New York; Roy Brondson, Oysterville, Mass.; and E. J. Harrison, Little Rock, Ark.

REDS CAPABLE OF PRODUCING SPEEDY BALL

Tampa, Fla.—March 25.—(AP)—Cincinnati's Reds started their 1936 baseball campaign from the floor of the Atlantic ocean but expected to wind up atop second division, at least, in the National league hemisphere.

Manager Charlie Dressen, the type of man who insists on progress, can't miss this year. When he took his players to Puerto Rico, he let them go deep sea diving the first few days.

"With a start like that," Dressen figured, "there's only one direction to go. That's up. I'm not talking a pennant for Cincinnati because we probably can't overpower such clubs as the Cubs, Cardinals, Giants and Pirates but we should top the second division."

Lack of punch probably will keep the Reds from starting a revolution among the National league ranks. Except for catcher Ernie Lombardi and outfielder Babe Herman, the Reds can't count on a single sure fire long range hitter. However, the pitching and defense should be tight enough to make the club a tough one to beat.

Is Pitching Ace
Paul Derringer, giant right hander who won 22 and lost 13 last year for the sixth place Reds, is the pitching ace of a staff that is filled with possibilities. With him are Gene Schott, winner of eight and loser of 11 in his first big league season last year; Al Hollingsworth, southpaw who displayed a world of stuff in '35, and Lee Stine, regarded as one of the best rookie mound prospects in baseball, Stine won 18 and lost 11 with the second division St. Paul club of the American association last year.

Jim Brennan, Laroy Herrmann, Tony Freitas, Benny Frey, and Jim Barnes probably will complete the staff, giving Dressen four southpaws and five right handers.

Except for the departure of Sun-jim Jim Bottomley, the Reds still start out with their same 1935 pony infield with Alex Kampouris at second, Bill Myers at short and Lew Riggs at third. The battle for Bottomley's first base job is hot between Newkirk and Les Scarsella, obtained from Wilmington, Lombardi and Hank Erickson give the Reds a capable catching duo.

Roaming the outfield at the start probably will be Sammy Byrd, Kiki Cuyler and Herman, who still is a holdout. Dressen has capable reserves for the outfield and isn't worrying about Herman. Calvin Chapman, a 155 pounder, and Ival Goodman have good chances to send veterans like Cuyler and Herman to the bench.

Their first appearance in ABC competition failed to disturb members of the Champlin Refining Company team from Enid, Okla., last night and the quintet rolled into second place in the five man standings with 2.911. Windsor Cigars, of Pekin, Ill., were shoved back to third.

Another Dean Signs; He's Peanut Vendor

Houston, Tex., March 25.—(AP)—Elmer Dean, the last holdout among the Dean brothers, has signed. Elmer, whose kid brothers, Jerome (Dizzy) and Paul (Daffy) came to terms a few days ago with the St. Louis Cardinals, stepped from the hold-out ranks yesterday and signed a contract as peanut vendor at the Houston Texas league park this summer.

Greenberg Ready To Rejoin Tiger Fold Report Says

Detroit, March 25.—(AP)—The News says Hank Greenberg, hold-out first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, has decided to leave today for the training camp at Lakeland, Fla., upon assurance that he would be welcome and have no trouble "in coming to an agreement."

The News says Greenberg, last of the important baseball players remaining unsigned, probably will be in Detroit uniform before a new week begins.

He had remained at his Croton Park home in New York awaiting a salary adjustment.

"I'm ready to play as soon as I put on my uniform," Greenberg was quoted as saying. "I'm in first-class condition and expect to have one of the biggest seasons of my career."

Bones of a mastodon found near Saltillo, Pa., will be hardened by a chemical process before being removed.

BASEBALL NOT DECLINING SAY LEAGUE HEADS

St. Louis, March 25.—(AP)—The National pastime is still holding its own.

In the opinion of Judge William G. Bramham, president of the National minor league baseball association, there has been no decline in baseball interest in the smaller communities of the country, either on the part of spectators or of boys wishing to enter the game professionally.

Perhaps the healthiest sign about the minor league situation, Bramham said here yesterday, is the growth in the number of leagues in the lower classifications, that is, Class C and D, which are the kindergartens of baseball.

There are four or five Class D leagues being formed now and of the 25 or more minor circuits all but seven are in the three lower groups, B, C, and D, he said.

"Night baseball," he added, "proved the salvation of many small leagues during the depression period."

UNCLE SAM HAS NO DECATHLON CANDIDATE NOW

Jarring Jim Bausch Has Retired From Athletic Field

BY ALAN GOULD
New York, March 25.—(AP)—Passing the baton quickly as they near the end of their aid to the writer in "doping" the Olympics, America's leading track coaches foresee continued supremacy for our foot-racers in the 400 and 1,600 meters relays but find no prospect among Uncle Sam's all-around athletes to pick up the decathlon pace where "Jarring Jim" Bausch left off in 1932.

Bausch crowned America's track and field triumph at Los Angeles with a marvelously versatile performance, posting the world record-breaking total of 8,462.23 points. Bausch turned crooner and retired from athletics soon after ward.

His record has been displaced by the all-around performance of a German, Hans Sievert, who was fifth in the 1932 Olympics but two years later achieved the new high mark of 8,790.46 points.

Although overshadowed by Bausch's feats four years ago, Germans and Finns captured four of the first six places. They expect to have the battle mostly to themselves in the decathlon this summer.

The leading three American prospects appear to be Robert Clark of the Olympic club, San Francisco, national champion for the past two years; Clyde Coffman of Kansas City, seventh in the 1932 Olympic decathlon and present national pentathlon titleholder; and John Jacob (Jay) Berwanger, Chicago's "Flying Dutchman" and All-America halfback.

Clark Won A. A. U. Title
Clark won the national A. A. U. title last year with 7,729.22 points. He starred in college as a broad jumper. Coffman also has plenty of speed and agility. He kept pace with Bausch in 1932 until they tackled the weight events and then was outclassed.

Despite his lack of competitive experience in the decathlon, Berwanger has an excellent chance to make the team and may develop as a formidable contender. This rugged Iowa is fast, a good hurdler and likely to excel either Clark or Coffman in weight-tossing. He is getting useful tips meanwhile on high jumping and pole vaulting from Keith Brown, former Yale captain, now in training with Berwanger for a comeback.

E. C. (Billy) Hayes, Indiana's coach, includes Notre Dame's Don Elser, the plunging fullback, and Francis Cretzmeier, Iowa track captain, in the list of decathlon possibilities.

Material for the Olympic equivalent of the spring and mile relays should be plentiful. These are the only track events in which the talent can be juggled to get the best results, regardless of the final tryouts. Generally the 400 meter team is picked from sprinters who failed to qualify from either individual dash.

BASEBALL NOT DECLINING SAY LEAGUE HEADS

St. Louis, March 25.—(AP)—The National pastime is still holding its own.

In the opinion of Judge William G. Bramham, president of the National minor league baseball association, there has been no decline in baseball interest in the smaller communities of the country, either on the part of spectators or of boys wishing to enter the game professionally.

Perhaps the healthiest sign about the minor league situation, Bramham said here yesterday, is the growth in the number of leagues in the lower classifications, that is, Class C and D, which are the kindergartens of baseball.

BUNDESEN AND ASSOCIATES IN DIXON LAST EVE

"Organization" Democrats Spoke to Voters at the Court House

Charging that Loeb and Leopold, two of Illinois' worst criminals, had been granted special privileges at the Stateville penitentiary by direction of the chief executive of the state and that laxity in the penal institutions of Illinois had permitted Willie Fernekes to don a pair of glasses and an old hat and walk out of prison, were made in the address last evening at the court house by Dr. Herman N. Bundesen of Chicago, Democrat opposing Governor Henry Horner's re-election.

Special cells were assigned Loeb and Leopold by the chief executive of the state, the candidate charged and he added that the Illinois institutions were in need of being humanized. A large gathering listened attentively to Dr. Bundesen and the other members of his party.

For Lower Taxes. "I object to false issues that muddy the water and cloud the issues," the candidate said in referring to charges of "bossism" connected with his selection as a candidate for the office which he seeks and in lauding Mayor Kelly of Chicago.

Taxes in Illinois, he told his listeners should and could be reduced. "We can never reduce taxes by piling up a huge surplus in the state treasury as at the present, and collecting approximately two million dollars a month toward this surplus at the rate of a penny at a time. It is not playing fair with the tax payer. The accumulation of vast sums of money creates dishonesty," Bundesen stated.

As he charged that two millions of dollars was being used by the opposition to create jobs for political purposes only. He condemned the practice of compelling state employees to donate from their salaries for campaign purposes, adding that state employees were poorly paid at the best.

Instead of building large and expensive additions to state institutions, Dr. Bundesen preferred the extension of the state educational system as a more desirable method of coping with crime.

Dixon Pre-ided.

John Stelle, candidate for the office of lieutenant governor was the first speaker of the evening to be introduced by Chairman Sherwood Dixon, head of the Lee County Democratic Central Committee. He was followed by Edward J. Barrett, candidate for auditor of public accounts; Edward V. Champion, state's attorney of Peoria county, candidate for congressman-at-large; and Representative Frank S. McClure of Abingdon, who accompanied the delegation. With reference to Speaker John P. Devine's retirement from the legislature, Representative McClure stated:

"The decision of your esteemed citizen, John P. Devine, to retire from the assembly is a great loss to the state of Illinois." Continuing McClure stated that the Democratic victory in electing Governor Horner had been turned into a Republican feast with the retention of many Republicans on state jobs.

Spoils to Victims.

"I am in favor of these jobs for members of the Democratic party and in the event that the Republican party ever is victorious again, I am equally in favor of their firing every Democrat within 90 days time after taking office and in 90 minutes if possible, of firing these half-breeds now holding down state jobs."

John C. Martin, candidate for state treasurer in his brief remarks, spoke of Speaker Devine and said:

"Of your esteemed citizen, my good friend, John P. Devine, I wish to say, in my opinion, is the best speaker that Illinois has ever had."

Lewis M. Long, candidate for congressman-at-large was the final speaker on the program preceding the gubernatorial candidate, Edward J. Hughes, candidate for secretary of state, and Otto Kerner, attorney general, were called back to Springfield yesterday and could not appear here at last evening's meeting.

MT. MORRIS

BY PAULINE YOE.

Mr. Morris. — Departing from their usual rule of exhibiting only the work of Rock River valley artists, the Kable Inn galleries are showing a small group of paintings by a Chicago artist, Miles J. Early, who has relatives in Mount Morris and has visited here on several occasions.

Mr. Early's exhibition is confined to landscapes, several of them painted in this section of the state. Nearly all of them are extremely vivid canvases, rich in strong color and the lush beauty of nature. Hillside, woodland and water have all contributed their picturesque moods to the imagination and skill of Mr. Early's painterbrush.

His ability is the more remarkable because he is self-taught. Notwithstanding this, his work has been recognized by important galleries. His work has been exhibited at the annual shows of the Chicago Art Institute, at the Empire Gallery in Rockefeller Center, New York as well as in many smaller galleries in many states, including Texas, his native state.

An interesting biographical note might be added: Miles Early comes of a family which played a prominent part in American history, one of his ancestors, Jubel Early of Civil War fame.

His paintings will be on exhibit for a limited time only.

Secretary Edmund Lamm of the local bowlers' association, has received the program of events for the National Bowling tournament, now in progress at Indianapolis.

The Mount Morris Metropolitan Life Insurance team composed of Roy Baker, Ray Baker, Lawrence Lamm, Edmund Lamm, and Ralph Few, is scheduled to bowl on April 9th and 10th. This is the best team which has represented Mount Morris for several years, and they are hoping to be in the money.

TOBY RYAN, 19, works behind the jewelry counter of a large Manhattan department store. She poses for a photograph to be used in a store advertisement and MARTY HATT, the photographer, tells her she has a "camera face."

Toby goes to dinner with BILL BRANDT who works in an advertising agency. A few days later Toby loses her job, due to the scheming of jealous MAURINE HALL, also employed in the jewelry department.

Toby's efforts to find another job are fruitless. Then she meets Marty Hatt and he sends her to BEN BLAKE who runs a model agency. Blake tells her she must have photographs in order to register as a model and arranges for Hatt to take them.

After several anxious days the model agency reports to Toby that they have an assignment for her. HARRIET HOLM, another model, loans Toby a dress.

Toby works at several other jobs. In one week she earns three times her salary at the store.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XIII

IT was one of those deceptive March days when brilliant sunshine and a clear blue sky call the unsuspecting out of doors to face, not balmy breezes but a snapping, wintry wind.

Toby Ryan walked briskly, clinging to the narrow brim of her hat, which looked as though, at any moment, it might dance away. Toby had been calling at studios, making the rounds as new models are advised to do in the hope of future calls for work. The last call had taken longer than she had expected and now Toby was in a hurry. In 20 minutes she was due at a studio on lower Madison.

She reached the intersection, saw a bus on the opposite side of the street, headed down town. Toby ran for it, climbed on board just as the doors were about to bang shut.

She dropped her fare into the coin box and slipped into the nearest seat with a sigh of relief. The pictures Toby was to pose for were not expensive, one-of-a-kind hats to be sold in exclusive shops, but the sort displayed in department stores with $3.49 and $4.98 price tags. It wasn't likely it would take more than an hour or so—

A voice at her elbow interrupted. "As I live and breathe! It's the girl with the blue eyes."

Toby turned. It was a moment—a long moment—before she recognized the young man beside her. His top coat was rough tweed and his hat was a gray felt. Toby said, knowing very well that she should not have said it, "Oh—hello."

"You don't know what a shock this is," the young man went on. "Meeting you again. Just like this. Why, I've looked everywhere for you—actually everywhere."

Toby said, "You're the man who bought the rhinestone clips, aren't you? Fifty-nine dollars' worth."

"Yes. And I'm the man who bumped into on the street corner one morning about a week ago. Remember?"

Toby's eyes told him she did. "By George!" he went on. "You're even prettier than I thought you were."

It was the wrong thing to say and he recognized this almost instantly. He said, "Oh, please don't be offended. I only said that because it's true. You're prettier than any other girl I've ever seen. Why shouldn't I say it when it's true?"

Toby had risen. Murmuring something he did not hear clearly, she pushed her way toward the door. A moment later the bus halted and she stepped down to the street.

On the sidewalk she turned—and raised startled eyes. The young man was beside her.

"Why—!" Toby began.

He said, grinning, "You don't think I'm going to risk losing you again, do you? Not a chance! Remember, we were going to have dinner together. I waited an hour for you that night. Now, listen, why don't you forget whatever it is you were going to do this afternoon and come along with me? We'll go over to Tony's—"

There was something about him that made it hard to refuse. "But I can't," Toby said.

"Oh, but of course you can. And what's more, you're going to. I'll tell you what we'll do—"

Toby shook her head. "No," she said. "I—really I can't. And I've got to go now. I'll be late if I don't."

"Then when can I see you? Will you meet me for dinner?"

She said, smiling a little because it was all so ridiculous, "You've forgotten that I don't know you. Why, I don't even know your name—"

"My name," the young man said, "is Timothy Jamieson. And you wrote it when you made out the charge for those clips—or whatever you call the things. I was hoping you'd remember."

Toby did remember, then. She asked, because she really was curious, "What in the world did you do with all those clips?"

"Really want to know?"

"Well, it's a long story but if you'll meet me for dinner—"

Toby saw a clock on the building across the street. The hands pointed to 4:25. Without waiting to hear more, she exclaimed, "Oh, I've got to hurry!" and fled.

SHE was breathless when she opened the door of the tenth floor studio. A woman in a green smock came forward and said, "Miss Ryan?"

"Yes. I hope I'm not late—"

The woman glanced at a wrist watch. "No," she said, "by my time you're a few minutes early. The photographer is busy with another model, but you can go in the dressing room and get ready. You'll find the hats you're to wear on the table."

Toby went into the dressing room. Thank fortune, that clock on the street had been fast!

It was an hour and a half later when she emerged from the building. Dusk had fallen and shop windows were lighted. Ahead, street lights glowed in the semi-darkness. Toby stood at the entrance for a moment, looking to left and right.

But there was no young man in a tweed topcoat and jaunty gray felt anywhere in sight. Toby hadn't really expected that there would be. She just wanted to be sure. He'd said that he did wait, that other time—

That, Toby promptly assured herself, was nonsense. Since when had she taken to believing the "lines" of fresh young men, trying to pick up dates? He was a fresh young man. What else could you call him—coming to the store the way he had, asking her to have dinner with him when they hadn't even been introduced? And he must have thought she was the sort of girl who would accept such an invitation or he wouldn't have asked her. The idea of believing, even for a minute, that he was different from any of the other fresh young men! He wasn't different; he was exactly like the rest.

No, she'd never see Mr. Timothy Jamieson (if that really was his name) again. Hurrying toward the avenue, she told herself she didn't even want to see him.

It was Wednesday, the night she usually had dinner with Bill Brandt, and she met him at their favorite cafeteria. The little table they favored, in a corner shadowed by the balcony, was vacant.

Toby set a plate of chicken and noodles and another of perfection salad on the red-and-white checked table cloth, discarded the tray and looked across at Bill.

She said, "I think I'm going to have a chance to pose for some really important pictures next week! I was in Tone & Raleigh's studio this afternoon and they practically promised me—"

She went on, relating the day's adventures—except, of course, the encounter with the young man on the bus.

SHE didn't notice as she talked, important names rolling glibly from her tongue, quoting figures that would have seemed enormous a few weeks ago, that Bill had little to say. Once she asked, "What are you working on now, Bill? Anything new?"

"Same old chores," he told her. "Toby didn't ask questions. She remembered something another girl who modeled had told her, lunched into the narrative."

They finished the evening with a movie. It was a picture starring Norma Shearer, and Toby, intent on the screen drama, could not forget that the glamorous heroine once had stood, even as Toby Ryan, before the cameras of commercial photographers. Of course Toby wasn't dreaming of a Hollywood career. Nothing like that. Still it was exciting!

They took the subway home. Toby didn't need to rise early the next morning, but she knew that Bill did. The light from a street lamp shone down on them as they stood before her rooming house. Toby suddenly noticed Bill's coat. It wasn't an expensive tweed, nor was it cut on smart lines. It was just an ordinary, two-year-old coat. Bill looked—well, a bit shabby. She'd never thought about it before.

She said goodnight then. She looked over her shoulder from the top step, smiling as she usually did, but it wasn't Bill she was thinking of. She was thinking of a young man with brown eyes beneath a jaunty gray felt—a young man she was never going to see again.

Toby turned her key in the lock and went inside. From the open door at the end of the hall the rooming house keeper's voice called, "That you, Miss Ryan?"

"Yes, Mrs. Moeller."

The woman appeared in the door. "There's a message for you. Came just a little while ago."

Toby said, "Why, how in the world—!" and reached for the slip of paper.

Sad Sight Grooms Garage Owner

This scene was typical of ones prevailing on hundreds of back lots in the flooded district after the torrents had subsided. Just a shattered heap of lumber and cement blocks now, the structure caved in on the two cars that were raged through the streets of McKees Rocks, Pa.

Street Is Junk Heap After Flood

With debris scattered in every direction and covered with mud and slime, streets of downtown Pittsburgh bore the aspect of huge junk dumps after the flood waters had receded. Here is a view of Eighth street, littered with barrels, hundreds of boxes, and heaps of miscellaneous debris.

Happy Hunting Grounds

By T. N. CARVER
 Professor Emeritus, Harvard University

Suppose that a hunting tribe should develop superior wisdom in the conservation of game, hoping thereby to enjoy a larger food supply. A higher standard of living, and greater economic security. Its hunting grounds, being well stocked with game, would be very tempting to other and less provident tribes. Unless it could control its own hunting grounds it would gain no advantage whatever from its own superior wisdom. Other tribes would hunt on its grounds and leave the provident tribe no better off than its improvident neighbors.

If it tried to control its own hunting grounds, that would be the end of world communism. Something which might be called tribal property would then exist. Of course the improvident tribes would set up a howl. "The earth is for all," and similar slogans would be shouted. However, our provident tribe would be facing a situation, not a theory. It must either control its hunting grounds, to the exclusion of other tribes, or it must sink to their economic level, and never build up a standard of living superior to that of the lowest tribe that could invade its hunting grounds. Suppose that a herding tribe tried to increase its food supply by breeding superior animals, conserving its grass, and improving the carrying capacity of its pasture lands. Like the hunting tribe, it would be compelled to control the source of its superior food supply. Otherwise, less provident tribes would eat it out of house and home. Everything that was said about hunting tribes can be repeated with respect to plowing and manufacturing tribes. It is impossible for any tribe or nation, whatever its form of industry, to build up a standard of living higher than that of its neighbors unless it can control its boundaries and determine who shall enter and under what conditions. Hungry people, with a lower standard of living, will come in such numbers as to reduce its standard of living to their level.

The danger is accentuated in proportion as transportation becomes cheaper and swifter. People can then move more cheaply and swiftly from low standard to high standard areas, and reduce all to the lower level at which men will breed in any part of the world. This should convince any one of the extreme stupidity of those who insist that cheap transportation must cause national boundaries to disappear. It is the best reason in the world why national boundaries must continue to exist.

Internationalism in the form of friendly relations among nations is one thing. Spurious internationalism in the sense of the non existence of nations and national boundaries, is a very different thing. The latter would destroy every possibility of a rising standard of living. It would reduce all peoples to the level of the most improvident and most fecund. Boundaries may change, nations may expand or contract territorially but no civilization ever did or ever could flourish except where the standard of living was protected by national boundaries.

Communists singing the Internationale, and talking glibly about a universal brotherhood of proletarians, cannot alter the fact.

AUSTRIAN BREWERIES HIT.
 Vienna (AP)—Steadily declining beer consumption in Austria is severely affecting this country's 104 breweries, the majority of which long ago were reduced to part-time. The 1935 wine crop added to their troubles so that several smaller breweries closed and others turned to the production of vinegar and other by-products of wine.
 Fossil bones, when found, are studied, photographed and prepared before removing.

POLO NEWS

On Thursday evening the music will be furnished by the Cornell college choir from Mt. Vernon, Iowa. The service was changed from the Christian church to the opera house to accommodate the large congregation which will want to attend.

A three-hour good Friday service will be sponsored by the Polo Ministerial association again this year. The service will be held in the Lutheran church.

The young married people's class of the Methodist church will have a supper at the church this evening. Mrs. Wayne Mayborn and Mrs. Allen Matison are the committee in charge.

The annual congregational business meeting of the Evangelical church will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 at which time there will be an election of officers and trustees and the reports of the various committees will be submitted.

The ladies aid of the Brick church will have an all-day meeting and quilting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Hartwig. A scramble dinner will be served at noon.

There will be a meeting of the Brick church Sunday school officers at the parsonage Wednesday evening at 7:30. This meeting has been called for the purpose of organizing a Bible class.

The Ladies' class of the Brick church will meet Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Robert Karstedt. The regular business meeting will be held and refreshments will be served by the committee consisting of Mrs. James Sarber, Mrs. Paul Weigle and Mrs. Elizabeth Weaver.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Brindle moved from Mt. Morris Monday to the Carl Coffman tenant house east of Polo.

Mrs. Ruth Hendrix who spent the past three weeks in Racine, Wis., returned home Saturday. She was accompanied by her son Walter and her daughter, Mrs. Earl Parker and family. They returned to Racine Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Metzler spent Sunday visiting in Belvidere.

Why Congressmen Vote as They Do

By WALTER E. SPAHR
 Secretary, Economists' National Committee on Monetary Policy

In these days when so many economic questions have been given a political tinge or are decided by Congress upon what appears to be political rather than economic merits, there arises the very vital question of why Congressmen vote as they do.

We have heard much recently about the response of Congressmen to vote - controlling pressure groups and of the relative lack of consideration given to the general welfare of the public, considered as consumers and taxpayers.

Favorable responses of Congressmen to pressure groups are not always evidence that they are moral cowards, or weak-kneed, or tools of particular groups, or forgetful of the broader interests of the general public. There are, unfortunately, cases in which a Congressman's votes can be explained on no other basis. But considering Congressmen and Congressmen in general there is another factor—the very nature of representative government, under which these men must operate.

Representatives and Senators, but especially the former, are elected by voters in certain restricted districts. The people in a Congressional district expect their Representative to look after their particular interests. If by some chance their interests do not coincide with the interests of the Nation as a whole, the Representative must decide whether he will vote in what his constituents conceive to be their interests or whether he will vote against them and in what he believes to be the best interests of the general public.

This Congressman may be a man of the highest type, thoroughly incorruptible, and determined to serve the general public in so far as he can. But the question of expediency arises at once and he may reason something like this: "Suppose I vote against this or that pressure group. I may be retired from office as a consequence and thus will be deprived of an opportunity to serve my country when I can do it without expense."

(Address questions to the author, care of this newspaper)

dangering my political future. I am more honest and capable than my political opponent, and, if I go out, and he comes in, my district and the country will suffer even more. It would appear, therefore, that in the long run it would be better for me to vote for this measure, much as I disapprove it, in order to remain where I can serve the country to the best of my ability."

In such cases honesty and expediency combine to decide the nature of the vote.

The nature of our representative system of government offers a Congressman only the most indefinite assurances of reward for his votes given in the interests of the consumer or taxpayer. Consumers or taxpayers, as such, over the nation as a whole, are in no position to show their approval by voting for him. Only the people in his district can do this. And it is the producer-groups not the consumers and taxpayers of his district who are organized effectively and who really control his political destiny. People as producers—farmers, industrialists, workers—divide sharply into groups to protect their interests because it is from these productive sources that their incomes are derived. Their welfare as taxpayers and consumers are not in conflict with those of other people since all members of the pressure groups are consumers and a large proportion are taxpayers, and since these interests seem quite secondary to their interests as receivers of income.

As a consequence nearly all effective pressure groups represent producers or those trying to enhance their incomes such as the veterans. Because there is no important conflict of views as to the interests of consumers and taxpayers and since they are both nationwide groups, both "interests" are poorly organized. Few Congressmen undertake to protect them against the producer or income-seeking pressure groups who may determine the political fate of the Congressman.

The consequence is that the nature of our representative system of government, places a Congressman in the difficult position of being responsible for legislating in the interests of the general public, whereas, in fact, his opportunity to legislate at all is, to a large degree, determined by the income or producer pressure groups effectively organized in his state or district.

More of this next week.

Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Metzler of Rock Falls were guests in the Mrs. Maria Klock home Sunday.

Mrs. George McGrath who spent the past three weeks with her brothers, Frank and Charles Lonergan at Portland, Ore., returned home Sunday.

Mrs. Frank Garman and children moved Monday from a farm northwest of Polo to the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Good.

John Hunter who is employed on the A. M. Hamilton farm was considerably relieved Sunday when he received a telegram from his sister in Johnstown, Pa., stating that she and her mother were safe and well. He had been concerned about their welfare and was unable to receive any communication from them before on account of the serious flood conditions.

aroma.... it's as much a part of Chesterfield as the taste

Did you ever notice the difference in the aroma of Chesterfield tobacco?

Every person who knows about tobacco will understand this . . . for to get a pleasing aroma is just like getting a pleasing taste from fruit. Mild ripe tobaccos, home-grown, and welded with the right kind of tobacco from far-off Greece and Turkey (Samsoun, Smyrna, Xanthi and Cavalla) . . .

... that's why Chesterfield has a more pleasing aroma.
